

An Interesting Computer Lesson

It is time for my computer lesson. My teacher is Mr Williams. Today, he teaches us how to search for what we need on the Internet. Mr Williams wants us to look for information on whales.

I type 'whales' in the search box. A list of all the websites on whales appears. I click on the first one. I read about the blue whale. I learn where it lives and what it eats. I copy some of the information in a notebook.

Very soon, the lesson comes to an end. My friends and I do not want to leave the computer room. Mr Williams promises to teach us something new the next lesson.
