

The Injured Bird

Katy is on her way home from school. She sees an injured bird in a puddle of water. Its leg is hurt. It cannot move. Its feathers are very wet. Katy picks up the bird and wraps it with her jacket. She takes it home.

At home, Katy dries the bird with a towel. She washes its wounds. She ties a bandage around its leg. She gives it some water to drink. Katy's father has an old cage. Katy puts the bird inside. She goes out to buy some bird food. The bird is hungry. It eats all the food.

The bird looks much better the next day. Katy decides to take care of the bird until it can fly again.